Rain Forest

A simple and dramatic Rain Forest inspired design that highlights the tropical species of trees that the Rain Tee collection is working so hard to save and protect. If we would loose the rain forest our world would be turned upside down; not only would we loose the trees that provide oxygen, clean the air, and help to send rain clouds to much of the world's farmland, but the world would loose one of the most diverse concentrations of species, imperative to all of our survival.

Tree of Life

Many of the children who created art for the Rain Tee Collection witness the destruction of their rain forest homes each day. On the Tree of Life a rain forest tree is crying leaves that symbolize its tears, and fish that have died and lay floating in water due to rain forest pollution. Mariela of Peru shows us so specifically through this image what we are not seeing in our homelands.

Loro Perico

A pair of lovely Amazon lovebirds illustrated by Julianna Estefinio of Ecuador. Some species of Amazon parrots are on the critical endangered species list. Amazon parrots can live for 50 years or more and are playful, loving and brilliantly colored birds.

Logo Tee

The Rain Tee Logo Tee design was inspired by the many children who we have had the pleasure to know through their illustrations and words. The illustration on this T-shirt combines trees, flowers and animals living in the rain forest in harmony.

Toucan

A signature Rain Tee illustrated by Rene Guillermo of Tena, Ecuador.

Due to habitat destruction the Toucan is officially an endangered species and scientists estimate that if Amazon destruction continues at its current rate these birds could sadly disappear forever. Amazon toucans live in small flocks and are very playful birds that have courtship displays where both male and female birds throw berries at each other or play catch by tossing the berries to each other with their beaks. How's that for a "play date?"

Joison

Illustrated by Joison Canelos of Ecuador, we named this whimsical design after him. The Joison illustration has graced the runways of Mercedes Benz Fashion week in Los Angeles, and is a bold, bright, and elegant statement from the eyes of a young child living in the Amazon.
